Coosa County Extension Office receives grant from Auburn School of Nursing

Coosa County Extension Office receives a grant from Auburn School of Nursing to assist with self-care health promotion outreach. Health Promotion remains the most cost effective approach to a reduction in preventable health problems. An AU Outreach funded project, Auburn University: Taking "It" to the People Southern Style (AU: TIPSS) is being used in Coosa County at the Town Hall in Rockford, AL. AU: TIPSS Project uses digital signage to provide state of the science evidenced based health promotion self-care messages to people in the county. Sharon Haynes, Coosa County Extension Coordinator, says the goal is to increase awareness of health related issues and empower people to become more engaged and responsible for their own self-care.

With limited access to health care within the County, Haynes says she hopes the digital messaging system will alert and educate County residents about the self-care. The digital messaging system is set-up in the Town Hall in Rockford, AL. The system provides tailored health messages that are streamed continuously so that persons frequently visiting the Town Hall might have the opportunity to gain information about keeping themselves and their family healthy. Each month, the staff for AU: TIPSS will design and send the messages to the County Extension Office to be displayed. Each month, participating sites will receive the updated information to be uploaded for viewing by those entering Town Hall.

With funding from AU Outreach, the Rockford Town Hall received a large television monitor and digital messaging equipment and mounting brackets for implementation of the project in their facility. Town Clerk, Callie Thornton says she encourages everyone in the County to come to Town Hall or Library to check out the system. This is a great educational tool for the County residents and an enhancement to our facility.

Should you have questions or want more information about something you have seen on the messaging board, the Coosa County Extension Office, located at 13999 AL Hwy 22 (right behind the courthouse) can assist you. For more information about the digital system, call the County Extension Office at 256-377-4713.
